Frequently asked questions

Is Ambridge's Specialty Management Liability Insurance available for D&O and fiduciary exposures of publicly-traded companies?

While our product can be offered to "one-off" management liability exposures faced by publicly-traded companies, in general, we are not a market for renewable D&O and fiduciary liability policies for publicly-traded companies. We can, however, offer a wide variety of management and fiduciary liability solutions for publicly-traded companies that are in liquidation.

What type of underwriting submission does Ambridge need in order to consider a Specialty Management Liability Insurance risk?

We can be most responsive to your request if you are able to provide:

- specifics about the background of the situation that has given rise to the need for coverage
- as much information as possible about the entities and/or transactions involved.

Will Ambridge consider Specialty Management Liability Insurance risks in any jurisdiction in which the potential risk might arise?

Ambridge's primary focus is on Specialty Management Liability Insurance risks that are based or may arise in the United States, the European Union, Australia, New Zealand, and Canada. In some jurisdictions, there may be practical considerations that preclude the offering of Ambridge's Specialty Management Liability Insurance product. If the risk is based in another jurisdiction, please contact us.

How long does it take Ambridge to perform a preliminary review of a Specialty Management Liability Insurance policy submission?

This depends on the nature and complexity of the risk for which insurance is sought. Generally, we can provide preliminary terms within 24 to 48 hours. Completion of full underwriting is dependent upon how quickly detailed information is provided to Ambridge. Ambridge frequently can offer bindable terms within several days after receipt of the initial submission.

Certain provisions of Ambridge's template Specialty Management Liability Insurance policy are not applicable to my client's circumstances. Can the template policy be amended to remove or amend these provisions?

Each Ambridge Specialty Management Liability Insurance policy will be tailored to the specifics of the risk to be insured and the insured's specific circumstances. Once an initial proposal has been provided to you, please contact us with any provisions that your client wishes to have removed or amended so that we can consider your request.
